

OPEN DOORS TO UNLIMITED GROWTH

WITH RYERSON UNIVERSITY MBA

Designed for the real world, Ryerson's MBA in the management of technology and innovation is Toronto's only MBA designed to meet the need for professionals with both technology and management skills.

In as little as 12 months, you could hold the management credential that opens doors to unlimited growth potential in today's highly competitive business environment.

The Ryerson MBA allows students to focus on the management of technology and innovation by specializing in supply chain management, media management, and information technology management. It meets the need for managers with a global orientation in the dynamic environment of modern business.

It is a challenging program that offers you a broad business management education with an international outlook. The curriculum design encourages collaboration among industry, students and faculty through integrative learning and the option of work placements and international exchanges.

According to Murtaza Haider, the associate dean of research and graduate programs, the Ryerson University MBA is the most accessible, relevant, and personal MBA degree in Canada.

"Ryerson MBA offers students the opportunity to become part of a rigorous learning environment that prepares students for challenging careers in the professional world without having to incur hundreds of thousands of dollars in tuition fees."

With small classes, the learning environment cultivates problem-solving, critical thinking and communication skills. Graduates will have the knowledge to analyze technology
